Visit the site at ANGELES - The Los Angeles Rams’ best hope for a playoff berth came to a quiet end at the Coliseum on Sunday afternoon, as they lost to the previously winless Buccaneers, 23-20. With less than three minutes remaining in the fourth quarter and the Rams trailing by three points, the team’s best players refused to field. “We are going to forfeit,” a visibly upset Jared Goff said after the game, adding that he had been notified about the move beforehand. The Buccaneers would ultimately tie the game on a Greg Zuerlein field goal with 28 seconds left, but the Rams, the 1-8 record holder, came up empty on their final two drives. The team’s captain, Marcus Peters, was reportedly a chief negotiator for the Rams in discussions leading
